We ask them to be present, and everybody who is interested in the Cherokee nation. This reunion is called to get the opinion of the citizens of the Cherokee nation in particular, so we will not have it second-handed. We want them to tell what they want done. Everybody come and bring your supplies; it is the first and last reunion called by the Cherokees. Speaking will begin at 10 a. m. on the 5th of September. Everybody be present and take a part in this reunion. There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local treatment, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's catarrh cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by all druggists, 75 cents. Hall's family pills are the best.

WOMEN AND WAR.

The Valuable Services Rendered by the Gentler Sex on the Field of Battle.

What are the preparations for the care of the sick and wounded of our army. In answering this question, the first fact that strikes one is the advance that has been made in these 27 years since these questions last were forced upon our national attention. We remember that in the early '70s we had not that large and able body of women—the trained nurses. The women who went to the front and acted as nurses had neither that strength of organization nor yet the power of ease of working possessed to-day by our trained and experienced nurses. There was the abounding wisdom of heart and the courage of self-forgetful patriotism and devotion. But they paid most for the service they rendered, because their heroism was not reinforced by practical preparation.

To-day we have hundreds of trained nurses, who add to the same womanly devotion the discipline of nerve and brain and hand, making a grand sum total of usefulness.

Another advance is in the wholesale manufacture of all that pertains to surgeons, hospital, and sanitary supplies. To-day we have great factories capable of indefinite production of the most scientifically perfect as well as the most compactly transported and easily transported, wound dressing and general surgeon's supplies. This is an incalculable advance. And while we almost envy our women of the earlier times, who could roll their zealous instincts by rolling bandages and picking lint, still we must concede the comfort and advantage of the surgical supply factory, and seek other fields of activity.

As regards the executive in the surgeon general's department, one has but to know that there is at the head in the regular army Surgeon General Sternberg, a man so eminent in all that pertains to sanitation and special scientific and medical research. Even regiment troops and battery has its surgical and nursing staff regularly enlisted. This is also true of the volunteer troops, as well as of our naval forces. These men are chosen, it is to be supposed and expected, with a discretion and care very much emphasized by memory of the cases of inefficiency which came to light during the civil war in this branch of the service. They are equipped with the most approved outfit for doing their work on the field or on board ship. So much have men done for the care of sick and wounded and notice is given officially from the surgeon general that women will not be employed at present, intimating, however, that should the war prove serious in point of heavy engagements, and should it become necessary to form large general hospitals, women may be needed. And it is towards this possibility that we must look.

The fact that this bids fair to be largely or entirely a naval war diminishes the chance that these large hospitals will be called into being. It has been definitely stated that no women in any capacity will be employed on the hospital ships. The suggestion that a rich and patriotic woman might purchase and equip such an auxiliary provokes the question why women who should be carefully chosen in regard to physical as well as professional fitness might not have some part in the personnel of the ship's company. Some of us have seen quite as much of the class of work to be expected as the majority of the young male doctors who are being taken into service.—Grace N. Kimball, M. D., in Harper's Bazar.

THE WINSOME SHAKER GIRL.

Is Near the Poet's Ideal in All the Sweet Endowments of Maidenhood.

A Shaker girl comes very near the poet's ideal in all the sweet endowments of maidenhood. She is frank, modest, gentle, refined in voice and movement, and with that utter unconsciousness of self as rare as it is de-lightful in this age of self-assertive femininity. The Shaker boy—why speak of impossibilities? I will not say that no Shaker was ever a boy, but I firmly incline to think that no boy ever was a Shaker. The growing youths at Lebanon were hearty and healthy as outdoor air and exercise could make them, and full of fun and mischief—the exuberant vitality that makes itself heard and seen—in this striking contrast to the extreme quietude and precision of the grown-up members.

It is sometimes asked how Shakers amuse themselves. A pertinent answer would be that they do not appear to feel the need of amusement, because their days and hours are so full of interest. Nevertheless such need is provided for, two evenings in the week being set apart for social pleasures, conversation, music, recitation, reading aloud, etc., in which the members participate. In summer pleasant outdoor reunions are held.—Madeline S. Bridges, in Ladies' Home Journal.

New Life Raft.

A new life raft is constructed of cork and canvas. It is attached to the side of a steamer, from which it can be instantly disconnected by a special lever and dropped into the water. To facilitate the transshipping of passengers from the deck of the ship to the raft, a small rope ladder and a canvas slide, such as is used for rescue from fire, are added. The slide can be attached to the raft in such a way that there is no chance of a person using it falling into the sea. The raft is fitted with a small sail, and makes fair headway under a breeze, while, in the event of a calm, it may be propelled by oars, which form part of its equipment. The seaworthiness of the craft is well spoken of. The work of unshipping or detaching it, lowering it into the water and manning it with six hands occupies less than four minutes.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Mrs. Malaprop's New Home.

Lady Acquaintance—And so, Mrs. Malaprop, you have moved into your new home. I suppose you find it a decided change from the house you have just left?

Mrs. Malaprop—Oh, yes—very much so, indeed. You see, we have such a pretty cypress affect with lithographic pavements round the grounds. Then inside every room is congealed with the pronouncer—in fact, we have all moderate improvements.—N. Y. Journal.

Opening Delayed.

Rev. W. R. King, president of Henry Kendall college, Muskogee, makes announcement that on account of the new buildings and the improvements, Henry Kendall college will open its fall term one week later than intended. The school will open September 12. The new buildings are about completed, but a few days more were needed to get things in order. Students will be met at the train on Saturday, September 10.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident, of which Mr. John Oliver, of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'electric bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle, at A. W. Foreman's drug store.

The authorities of Willie Halse College made a favorable impression on Dr. Lambuth, of Nashville, representative of the M. E. board, and feel reasonably confident they can get a thousand or fifteen hundred dollars next year to build a boys' dormitory. They had no difficulty in convincing him of their needs.

Ballard's snow liniment cures rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, sick headache, sore throat, cuts, sprains, bruises, old sores, corns, and all pain and inflammation. Most penetrating liniment in the world. Try it, 25 and 50c. P. Shanahan.

W. S. Crockett has been assisting in the dry goods department at Badgett's.

A wonderful medicine—Beggs' little giant pills—for weak stomach, impaired digestion, disordered liver, sick headache, constipation, female ailments, are absolutely without a rival. Take no substitute, ask for Beggs'.

John F. Warren was up last Saturday. He had been to see the Dawes commission the day before and from the way the gentleman talked it was fair to presume the interview was not at all satisfactory.

Is your child puny, pecked and peevish? Does it have convulsions? If so, it has worms. White's cream of tartar is the only safe cure. Every bottle is guaranteed to bring worms, 25c. P. Shanahan.

For diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cholera, flux and all summer complaints, nothing is so gentle, soothing and effective as Beggs' diarrhoea balsam. It never fails to give relief and if taken in time will effect a speedy cure. Be sure that you get Beggs', the only remedy with a national reputation.

There is no pain and discomfort when Tabler's buckeye pile ointment is used. It relieves that itching increased by scratching. It is prepared with scientific accuracy and professional knowledge and is the kind that cures blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles with no pain or loss of time. P. Shanahan.

Col. R. W. Blue discovered in some manner that THE CHIEFTAIN issued a pictorial souvenir number some months ago with write-up of the town. He has been repeatedly ordering copies sent to friends—prospective citizens of Vinita—and in his last order says the papers sent are doing good service.

For external piles, cuts, burns and bruises, old sores, eczema and all skin diseases Beggs' German salve stands out without a peer. It is an old reliable remedy and if used freely wounds will heal without scar. Be careful to get Beggs' and be sure of a speedy cure.

That dark brown taste and horrid breath you have in the morning is caused by an inactive liver; some medicines, relieve for a while, others for a few days, but herbine cures. 50c. P. Shanahan.

Rev. F. W. Hawley, of Oklahoma City, syndical superintendent of Indian Territory and Oklahoma, will occupy the pulpit at the Presbyterian church next Sabbath morning. He will also preach at Pleasant Hill in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

It is true that others imitate the methods employed in advertising Beggs' German salve, others claim to heal and to cure disease because Beggs' German salve, the one true ointment, has been so wonderfully successful. But in thousands and thousands of cases, as shown by grateful testimonials, Beggs' German salve actually and permanently cures when other medicines fail to do any good whatever.

Sam Ridenhour is doing a good ice business—wagon on the street all the time and delivery immediate—but solicits more orders. Hail the wagon, or leave orders at Foreman's drug store. Mail or telegraph orders filled first train.

Beggs' German Salve is an invaluable remedy for cuts, burns, bruises, scalds, chapped hands, sore nipples, sore lips, eczema, ulcers, chronic sores, skin eruptions, fever sores and all skin diseases.

It is not what a manufacturer says about his own medicine that cures a patient, but what the medicine does. Ballard's horchound syrup does the work and does it well. Cures coughs and colds in a day, it is healing, soothing and quieting. 25 and 50c. P. Shanahan.

DISUNITED SPAIN.

The Catalans Are Not Enamored of the War—Life in Barcelona.

In Barcelona itself some 30,000 French people are permanently settled. A rather contemptuous hatred of Castile, and a jealousy of her perpetual interference by officials and military law, are accepted things. The Catalans have a keen and earnest desire of their own. They do not think of separation or union with France, but the demand for autonomy—for self-government in all but foreign affairs—is perhaps as strong as in Ireland. And Catalonia is beyond comparison the richest province of Spain—the most progressive, and the most industrious in the modern sense.

A peculiar proof of this separatist tendency was lately given when the Madrid government called upon the manufacturers of Barcelona to contribute voluntarily about $200,000 to the defense of their town. The manufacturers replied that already they paid most of the expenses for government and defense in Spain, and that if the Yankee admiral came they would invite him to dinner. The patriotic subscription yielded hardly anything. The whole matter is indeed entirely of the war. They regard it merely as a continuation of the Cuban war, which has paralyzed business for three years past. What terms they would agree to of course I cannot say; but since the demand for cottons in Cuba and the Philippines entirely ceased at least the factories stand altogether idle, and the rest are doing little more than half-time. In one of the largest which I visited, the manager told me they used to employ 1,500 hands daily. Now less than half the machines are in work, and they must concede the fact that starvation by employing them in shifts of alternate weeks. Coal is very dear, being bought up by railways and ships of war. There is enough raw cotton for the time, but not for long. The big factories have been doing half-time or less for six months past. As might be supposed, the workpeople are living pretty close, and food, especially meat, is terribly dear besides.

To the ordinary miseries of factory existence is added the horror of the Cuban service. The rich man buys exemption for his child. He pays some times $200, and his child is free. But from nearly every working family at least one has been taken, drilled and sent to Cuba, probably to die. Wealth never exercised a more shameful privilege or a crueler tyranny. Do you suppose the poor do not notice this? One of the finest of the anarchist hymns in Barcelona tells of a young workman taken from his home and going with his draft. His mother cries horribly. A wealthy youth who has bought exemption cheers the departing troops and bids them fight well for the glory of the race.

Barcelona is reputed one of the most turbulent and revolutionary cities of the world. Yet it is outwardly quiet now. The state of siege is very strict. Soldiers are everywhere. At present there is not a sign of resistance, hardly of complaint. About 300 anarchists have been arrested. When that the tortures in Montjuich were established, when it was known that five men had been shot because one poor creature in the extremity of his sufferings had repeated any evidence asked of him, there were some in the town who said it was no matter how anarchists were treated. No one dares to say the word now. The execution of the torturers is universal. The abominable blackens the memory of Canovas and has got him the name of butcher. It has got to increase the long debt of hatred to Castile, and perhaps that may be paid in time.

Nothing in the present all is quiet and nothing is done, though it is perfectly well known that the trial of the surviving torturers, still nominally proceeding in Madrid, will be dragged on till all is forgotten, or end in some nominal penalty.—London Chronicle.

ON BOARD THE YANKEE.

Not Much Sleep and Plenty of Excitement the Rule While on Duty Off Santiago de Cuba.

The following description of life on the auxiliary cruiser Yankee, of Santiago, comes from a member of the New York naval militia who is on board: "We have been here now two days and they have been full of excitement and without sleep. At two o'clock this morning we were lying about two miles off Morro fortress. I was asleep in my hammock when I was wakened by a clear ship for action. I ran up on the spar deck, where I was stationed, in my undershirt. We got the ammunition from the magazine, and in five minutes everything was in readiness for action. Spanish torpedo boats under cover of darkness were out and the fort fired directly toward us. You can imagine the sensation of having an enemy approach when it is scarcely possible to see your hand before your face. We waited for the order to fire, and in the meantime the battleships Iowa and Texas drew up under the Morro fortress. We kept on for 30 minutes and then the order to cease firing was given.

"This morning three torpedoes were found in the vicinity of the Yankee. They were not evidently shot and our torpedoes at, and retired after firing several torpedoes at us. We are going to be here through it all. We have a fine crew and splendid officers. To-night, it is said, the fleet is to storm the fortress and get possession, if possible. They are to ask for volunteers, and you can count on my name being on the list.

"I average about four hours' sleep each night. I have grown quite thin, but feel fit for anything in the way of hardship. A few nights ago one of my men was killed at his gun, owing to defective ammunition. Two others were seriously wounded. He was on the gun next to mine. He was buried in the sea an hour afterward. The funeral occupied the space of about 15 minutes. I am in for it, old man, heart and soul. We are now lying about a mile from Morro fortress and our sailing is the Spanish flag flying. It is terribly hot, and I do everything to keep myself in good condition."—N. Y. Sun.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtin, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement, that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her that she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's new discovery for consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from the first dose. She continued its use and after taking six bottles, found herself sound and well; now does her own housework, and is as well as she ever was. Free trial bottles of this great discovery at A. W. Foreman's drug store. Large bottles 50c and $1.00.
